

Fish Tail Palm

The fish tail palm has evolved leaf tips to look like they have already been eaten by insects. The theory is that it appears less appetizing to predators because it looks like something else has already nibbled on it.